

With recorded evidence and a confession from a perpetrator of abuse, Carrie Walters was railroaded via the court and incarcerated for protecting herself in a violent attack.

She has taken her battle public to show that Hawaii courts are knowingly complicit in assisting abusers, while punishing victims and survivors of abuse when they report.

Carrie has recorded conversations of the attack, and conversations with officials (that were represented differently to the court by these same officials). They have attempted to thwart Carrie's efforts to protect herself from systemic corruption by ordering her to stop recording. She refuses and it remains her right under HI statute.

Read more about Carrie's case